

Banned Books Week

October 2, 2023. This is Banned Books Week. Banned books is a growing crisis in America. From January 1 – August 31st of this year a total of 3923 total titles were targeted for censorship. And 695 attempts were made to ban or restrict book services.

Actor Levar Burton, “Jordy,” from Star Trek and the lead character from the movie “Roots” was recently interviewed by Stephanie Ruhle as he was named the honorary Chair of Banned Books Week.

Burton announced that the number of banned books was up by 20% over the same period last year. He stated, “parents have a right to monitor what their child reads, but I don’t believe you have the right to impose your beliefs on other people’s kids. Censorship is just not okay. It is a no nonsense conversation that involves common good and common sense.

Saturday is “Let Freedom Read Day,” announced Stephanie Ruhle. What one action would you recommend to take to defend books from censorship? “Support readers, support libraries,” replied Burton. People want to protect our rights to read our banned books.

Burton pointed out that some books may not be appropriate for young children. However, young teens who are experiencing growth spurts might benefit reading about characters who are dealing with similar issues and are able to learn ways to address such issues when they see themselves in the characters.

“If people say that there are no books being banned, then they are ill-informed or are willfully ignorant. Age appropriateness is what we have to be mindful of, but every book is not for everyone, but there is a book somebody is destined to read.”

Pioneer Spirit Luncheon Honors Outstanding Leaders

The Pioneer Spirit Luncheon was held during Nisei Week at the Omni Hotel. Family, friends, and supporters gathered to pay tribute to six honorees. Organizations in the community nominated the honorees for their values of service and commitment to the American Community. Nisei Week President David Yamahata and Pioneer Spirit Committee Chairperson Nolan Maehara welcomed the attendees.

This year's honorees are Dr. Akiko Agishi, founder of the Japanese Language Scholarship Foundation; Ron Dyo, a leader in the Pasadena Japanese-American community; Akita Fujimoto, chairman of Tomonokai, president of Okayama Kenjikai; Joan Kawasaki, the leader in the Orange County Nikkei community; Kyoko Nancy Oda, leader of the Tuna Canyon Detention Station Coalition and vice president of Torrance WWII Camp Wall memorial; Dr. Kanji Sahara, leader involved in multiple community organizations to preserve the Japanese American culture and history. Each honoree dedicated their time, leadership, and personal commitment to ensure the legacy of our communities will continue for future generations.

The San Fernando JACL Chapter is exceedingly proud to have a Board Member recognized and honored as having the Pioneer Spirit. Kyoko Nancy Oda was an elementary school principal and served in the LAUSD for

As vice president of the WWII Camp Wall Committee, a wall with 120,000 names of Japanese Americans incarcerated during WWII inscribed on a stone wall in Torrance. Kyoko provided the leadership in having the City of Los Angeles designate the former Tuna Canyon Detention Station as a Historic-Culture Monument. This site was where 2,000 Japanese, German, and Italian immigrants were detained during WWII.

She also has earned a Kodokan black belt in judo from Senshin Dojo. She and her husband Kay continue to serve the Japanese American community and are working to expand the San Fernando Community Center.

The Nisei Week Foundation also presented Community Service Awards to Anzen Hardware, Toyo Miyatake Studio, Tanaka Farms, and the U.S. Bank. Inspiration Awards were presented to Don Tahara and Kristin Fukushima. The President's Award was posthumously presented to Cathy Tanaka. 81st Nisei Week Festival Continues 2023

The theme for the 2023 Nisei Week Festival was “Turning the Corner.” After the second hiatus caused by the COVID-19 pandemic and the first due to Japanese incarceration during WW II, the Nisei Week Festival opened its nine-day celebration of Japanese and Japanese American culture, heritage, and community.

A Grand Parade was held through the streets of Little Tokyo with Grand Marshal Bill Watanabe, community leader and past director of the Little Tokyo Service Center. The Parade Marshal was Jamie Hagiya, a former USC basketball player and CrossFit athlete. The parade included elected officials, community dignitaries, taiko drummers, youth groups, Ondo performers, classic cars, L. A. Nebuta Float, and Nisei Week Queen, Kaitlyn Chu and her Court. Also, part of the parade, I was proud to join fellow veterans from the Buddhahead Breakfast Club and others serving in the armed forces in marching in the parade. We greatly appreciated the applause from the parade watchers and their many shouts of “Thank you for your service.”

The Japanese American Community Center held cultural demonstrations which included: tea ceremony, ikebana, ceramics, calligraphy, and doll making and much more. Along with the Nisei Week Queen Coronation, the Nisei Week Baby Show, Pioneer Spirit Luncheon, Natsumatsuri Program at the Japanese American National Museum, there were athletic events, demonstrations, presentations throughout Japanese Town during the Nisei Week celebration. Hopefully you and your family members will join and take part in Nisei Week next year as we continue to keep our traditions alive for our future generations.

L.A. Tanabata Festival Kazari Displays For Nisei Week

Award-winning Kazari from Sendai Japan were on display at the Japanese American National Museum and the Japanese American Community Center during Nisei Week. Five large kazari were hung outside of JANM with kazari created by individuals, Nanka Kenjikai Kyogikai, churches, and other community organizations were on display in the Grand Hall. Natsumatsuri Family Festival sponsored by JANM welcomed visitors with free admission and with many fun and creative activities for the entire family.

The making of spectacular 8-foot bamboo kazari was established over 400 years ago by Date Masamune (1567-1636). Mr. and Mrs. Yonezawa, Miyagi Ken, and support from Mr. Ichiro Shiromatsu from Sendai joined together to establish a Tanabata Festival here in Los Angeles in 2009. Through the years, hundreds of kazari have been designed and created by people in our communities. The gathering of family members, church members, Kenjikai members, youth groups, community organizations, and others created their unique kazari for everyone to enjoy. It provided the opportunity for a group of people to collectively design and create a special group creation. Please plan to join us next year with your creative group effort.

JIM CROW Era

Attacks against former slaves continued in an attempt to return to the pre-Civil War social order, when Afro-Americans had no voting rights or ability to accrue property or other wealth. The period of Reconstruction when Blacks were able to elect Congressional leaders and accrue wealth was short lived. Angry whites, jealous of the wealth and power Blacks were able to accrue, attacked, destroyed and massacred Black communities.

After 1920, those attacks continued against various prosperous Black communities.

C) 1921 in the Greenwood district of Tulsa, OK, also known as the affluent African American community or the Black Wall Street was nearly destroyed by a confrontation with white looters and arsonists with Greenwood defenders. The Governor declared Martial Law and National Guard troops were called in to Tulsa. Guardsmen assisted firemen in putting out fires, removed Blacks from the hands of vigilantes and imprisoned all Black Tulsans, not already interned. Over 6000 people were held at the Convention Hall or Fairgrounds; 35 city blocks was charred and historians claim from 36 to 600 people died.

E) January 1923 the Black town of Rosewood, FL. The massacre was racially motivated, characterized as a race riot that killed 27-150 people. Rosewood was destroyed and abandoned.

F) In 1955, a 14 year old south Chicago boy was visiting family in Money, MS. Emmett Till was said to have made lewd advances at a store clerk, grabbed and wolf-whistled at her. That night Till was dragged from his uncle's home mutilated and killed. His body was thrown into the Tallahatchie River by the two White men who were subsequently tried and acquitted by an all-white jury.

Jim Crow racial tactics did not end in 1954 after Brown v. Board of Education, the desegregation of public schools or after Rosa Parks declined to give up her bus seat on a public bus to a white person on December 1, 1955.

Remnants of institutionalized racism and brutality was demonstrated in 2020, when a choke hold suffocated George Floyd in Minneapolis, MN and forced entry into Breonna Taylor's apartment and indiscriminate shots fired led to her death in Louisville, KY.

Institutionalized racial discrimination under color of law still persists in our modern day legal institutions. Racial discrimination that started hundreds of years ago as a justification for slavery has not, even to this day, been purged from our social and legal customs. Taxing or penalizing misdemeanor offenses to collect fines and creating a captive workforce is still slave labor for those who cannot pay the fines.

SONGS FOR A SANSEI

The Grateful Crane Ensemble's 13th annual fundraising dinner was held at Nishi Hongwanji in Los Angeles on Saturday, September 16th. Several members from our SFV JACL attended the event to show their support.

The evening began with a silent auction, followed by a special dinner prepared by Azay Restaurant in Little Tokyo. Chef/Owner Akira Hirose, incorporated French and Japanese elements in the evening's tasty cuisine.

The musical portion of the program began with a clever way of thanking the major sponsors by incorporating each of their names in the lyrics of a separate familiar song.

Grateful Crane Ensemble members Haruye Ioke, Lisa Joe, Keiko Kawashima and Darrell Kunitomi harmonically entertained us for the remainder of the evening with 14+ song playlist from the Sansei generation.

Thank you to the Grateful Crane for another entertaining evening!

SFV JACC COORDINATING COUNCIL – NOTES OF INTEREST September 20, 2023

LAPD Officer Diana Figueroa reported on the DOWNGWARD_trend for AGGRAVATED ASSAULTS. LAPD continues their efforts to provide services regarding the homeless population. Recently the southbound offramp of the 5 Freeway was cleared of encampments. It becomes a revolving situation as one area is cleared of debris, the homeless take up residence in a neighboring area despite being offered housing and other social services. Upon questioning, Officer Figueroa recommended a GRAFFITI app using an app store. Graffiti removal is usually done on Fridays. LAPD also recommended "situational awareness" as we enter the holiday season.

SFV JACC SUPER BINGO is November 4, 2023. $125. The CC is seeking donations (gift certificates, baskets of goodies, cash, etc. & anything for the silent auction)

How can we use education as a tool to not only correct past historical narratives but to also move forward towards promoting a greater social consciousness within our society to all injustices? We are expanding our worldview with the issue of reparations.
